Presentation description:

Dr. Paul Theriault presents his latest findings on increasing responsiveness of modern patients to Naturopathic therapies. Three remedies, dealing with chronic infections, chemical toxicity imprinting the vital force, and suppression of acute infections will be presented, along with screening exams to determine when these remedies are needed.

The cures reported by Naturopathic Doctors have become considerably less since those of our forebears in the 19th and 20th centuries. The reasons for this decreased response to natural therapies is multifaceted. Increased chemical pollution, increased suppression of acute infections, increased electromagnetic radiation, increased consumption of food intolerances, trauma, increased and poorly treated chronic injuries, and increased rates of chronic infection have all undermined the body's ability to regulate itself, and to respond to Naturopathic therapies, necessitating more forceful and dangerous interventions. However, each of these factors can be neutralized using simple remedies within the ability and scope of any Naturopathic doctor. Using several unique Homeopathic preparations, derived from high triturations of the Homeopathic remedies Sarcodes sanguinea, Monotropa uniflora and Cordyceps sinensis, Naturopathic Doctors can begin to return their patients to a state of vitality sufficient to respond in such a manner as we see in the classical Naturopathic cases. Physical exams for screening for these remedies being indicated will also be presented, derived from French Auricular Medicine techniques, as taught by Mikhael Adams.
